The Storage Sweep

Find out what is actually eating your phone's space, and clear the pile you can clear today.

> PACING About 15 minutes, and it pauses well. Do the start step, note your number, and if you get tired, the checkboxes will happily wait for tomorrow's you.

Start here: take the before picture (3 min)

- [ ] Open your phone's Settings → Storage (or the storage panel your phone has).
- [ ] Write down your free space _____ and stare at the biggest bar for a moment. That bar is today's target.

The big three (5 min)

These three spots hide the most junk per minute of effort.

- [ ] Downloads folder. Sort by newest, delete everything older than a month that you cannot name on sight.
- [ ] Chat app attachments. Open your messaging app's storage screen and clear old photo/video attachments. (They live there even if you saved the good ones.)
- [ ] "Downloaded for later" pile. Podcasts, shows, maps, and offline music you finished or forgot. Keep one episode, delete the rest.

The middle loop (7 min)

- [ ] Clear the cache of the three biggest apps from the start picture: _____ _____ _____
- [ ] Delete stale voice memos, screen recordings, and "why did I film this" videos.
- [ ] Empty the Recently Deleted trash in both your photos app and your files app (it still holds space until you do).
- [ ] Recycle or export anything you want off the phone but not gone from your life: _____

Finish: take the after picture

Before [ ] GB free

After [ ] GB free — a gain worth a small victory lap.

Done looks like: a number you did not have this morning, and no mystery bars left. Now hop to the reward list (sheet 9) when the whole day is over.
